Accused of attempted murder in London – Seham Dandan, 25, and his wife Mahdi, 21, are accused of stabbing to death a 22-year-old student and attempting to kill her boyfriend, also a Syrian refugee. The three suspects, all Syrians, are set to appear in court later this week. The 23-year-old woman was stabbed several times in the neck and died from her injuries. According to The Mirror, the suspects fled the scene shortly after the incident took place on Saturday afternoon. However, they were quickly caught when a man spotted them in a nearby house and called the police. The couple were taken into custody at the scene, while the third suspect was taken into custody on Monday. The suspects are all living in a house in Whitechapel, an area in East London. The trio is set to appear in court at Wandsworth on Wednesday. According to The Mirror, all three suspects have been arrested before. Seham Dandan had been convicted of robbery and possession of cocaine, while Mahdi had a previous conviction for assault. The Syrian couple denied killing the 22-year-old. A family friend also reportedly said that the pair are “paranoid and aggressive” and that the husband was frequently at odds with his wife. A neighbor also said that he had spoken
