system as VenkaSure Web & Email Protection. The method of protection is the same. It is based on the virus scanning technology. It uses your computer and network for the search of active viruses and worms. It covers the whole range of the potential infections, such as Trojans, adware, Ransomware, spyware, and other types of malware. It is not intrusive. It allows you to block all or only some types of websites. You can specify the frequency of the updates. For example, for the work-related tasks the updates should be carried out three times per day. The updates are performed when the user starts the computer. The program does not slow down the computer during the updates. It scans automatically the system when it starts or a specified time interval after that. The automatic scans are carried out in the background. You do not have to wait for a long time to find out whether there is an update for your

Navy Secretary Robert Neller is still at the helm of the Navy, even though Donald Trump has removed Defense Secretary James Mattis, and has promised the nation in an interview that he will replace Mattis with someone who will be tougher on Iran, the United States' traditional rival. This is, essentially, a campaign promise that Mattis did not make, and now Trump is missing a chance to fulfill it. Mattis is not the only defense secretary who has had to fight for his job: former Secretary of Defense Bob Gates was fired by President Obama; former Secretary of Defense Ash Carter was not replaced when he resigned; former Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta resigned in the middle of his second term. The Trump administration is reportedly already talking to leading retired four-star generals about taking over the post. The president's choice to replace Mattis will be a difficult one, but one in which the president already seems to have his mind made up. But the defense secretary position is of such importance that it can't be left vacant. A president who can't stand the defense secretary is not likely to be able to stand the defense secretary either. At the same time, a president who values loyalty to friends and family over loyalty to the country is also likely to be unable to work well with the defense
